Arthur Fox began his teaching career in rural school in Vernon County, Wisconsin. Later, he took a course at Steven’s Point Normal School and taught in the upper grades in his home town of Hillsboro. After being a ward school principal in Wisconsin Rapids, Fox taught for two years at Barnum, Minnesota, was principal at Frankfurt, South Dakota, and superintendent at Willow Lakes, South Dakota. After he graduated, Fox accepted a position as a teacher in industrial arts at Madison Central High School, where he remained for three years.

When the Eau Claire State College was built in 1916, Fox came to plan and equip the industrial arts department. He would head this department for five years. Fox also performed teacher training work and in 1926 was appointed as the first registrar of the college. After three years at the position, he asked for a release and began teaching education courses until 1939 when he was reappointed registrar for the Eau Claire State Teachers College. Fox was named dean of instruction as well as registrar with the under college President William R. Davies. Fox completed his graduate work at Stanford University in California during summers while on the Eau Claire faculty. He retired in 1948 after 32 years of service at the college.
