Want your students to use the library?

- Invite a librarian to your class for a customized interactive library session. Librarians will work with you to ensure relevant assignment-appropriate library instruction. (http://bit.ly/16MBA2s)
- Students use the library because of faculty referrals and expectations. Refer your students to the library Research Center (1st floor). Advise or require that they meet with a librarian. Librarians are available to meet on a drop-in or appointment basis.
- Tell your students about the library’s online chat feature, an easy, quick, nonthreatening way to connect with the library. Available on the library homepage (www.uwec.edu/library)

Want your students to do research but not assigning research papers?

- Contact your liaison librarian to discuss alternative assignments to research papers that will incorporate library and information literacy concepts.
- Library instruction sessions are more than “how to find a book or article.” We can also work with students on evaluating information sources they encounter online and in their everyday lives.

Don’t have time in the semester to give up a class period for library instruction?

Librarians collaborate with faculty in a number of different ways. For example:

- Librarians design online research guides and tutorials for specific classes, research projects and subject areas. See what we have or contact your librarian for a customized guide http://libguides.uwec.edu
- ‘Embed’ a librarian in your online class to provide research assistance. Librarians can monitor discussion threads and offer research advice.

Used libraries before, but don’t know how to use this library?

- Use Library Search, to find books, media, articles in McIntyre Library as well as all libraries in the UW System http://www.uwec.edu/library
- Find a database for more specialized and advanced research needs http://libguides.uwec.edu/databases
- Contact your library liaison who will be happy to provide an overview or work with you on a specific research project.
