Professional Sales
The professional sales emphasis in the marketing program prepares students for success through a curriculum that includes a strong liberal education core, and major-specific coursework that provides in-depth knowledge of marketing, sales, and business. The program also helps students develop communication, teamwork, and problem solving skills, which are highly valued by organizations seeking to employ sales professionals.

Graduates work for a wide variety of for profit and not for profit organizations where they are account managers, advertising executives, fundraisers, insurance agents, group and events sales coordinators, key account managers, sales managers, sales representatives, and territory managers.
