Course Description

Objectives
Psychology 100 is designed to be a comprehensive introduction to the field of psychology. The course will review the major areas of historical and contemporary psychological theory and research, and will serve as a foundation for more advanced classes in psychology. During our time together, we will strives to:

- obtain a thorough understanding of the major topics and perspectives in psychology, including both historical information and recent findings - emphasis will be placed on psychological research and how psychology can be applied to everyday life
- understand and be able to communicate basic ideas in psychology, using the language, terms, and methods of the field
- extend your ability to think both critically and creatively about the issues of psychology that you will encounter both in and out of class
- build a solid intellectual platform for further study in psychology, whether formally or informally

Relationship to UW-Eau Claire’s Liberal Education Learning Goals
Your experiences in this course will enhance your knowledge of human culture (goal 1), creative and critical thinking (goal 2), communication skills (goal 3), sense of individual and social responsibility (goal 4), and respect for diversity among people (goal 5).

Our Class as Part of a Larger Learning Community
As members of this class, we are members of a larger learning community where excellence is achieved through civility. Our actions affect everyone in our community. Courtesy is reciprocated and extends beyond our local setting, whether in future jobs, classes, or communities. Civility is not learned individually, it is practiced as a community.

Textbook and Other Resources

Chapter outlines to assist your note taking, chapter reviews, descriptions of course activities, and sample exam questions that I have written are located on UW-Eau Claire’s W drive (deptdir) in the Psychology Department’s folder under Bica. The W drive can be accessed directly from campus computer labs or via the web at http://cass1.uwec.edu/deptdir. There is also a website designed by the textbook publisher at www.worthpublishers.com/gray. This site has activities and simulations for the more challenging concepts, as well as self-tests to help you prepare for exams.

Any student who has a disability and is in need of classroom accommodations should contact the professor and the Services for Students with Disabilities Office (2136 Old Library, 836-4542) at the beginning of the semester.

Attendance Policy

Students who show strong class attendance get better grades. We will use each class meeting to expand on concepts discussed in the textbook in order to help you prepare for exams. According to University policy, attendance will be taken at each class meeting. Attendance will not be considered as a component of your grade, as I feel that your attendance is your responsibility, but know that it is essential to your success in the course. Should you have to miss a class, use the chapter outlines to help you gather information from the textbook. You could also ask a classmate for a copy of her/his notes. I will not be able to give you notes or recreate the lecture for you outside of class.

Grading Information

There will be two required sources of evaluation in this course:

(1) Examinations
The course is divided into four sections, with each section exploring different areas of psychology. After each section, there will be a 50-item multiple-choice exam covering lectures, assigned readings, and multimedia. You need to bring a #2 pencil to all examinations.

Make-up policy:
All students are expected to take examinations at the times and dates specified. On the rare occasion that you cannot take an exam at the scheduled time, you must notify me of the circumstances prior to the exam date. Providing that the reason(s) for the absence is/are valid, you will be scheduled for a make-up exam.

All students must be scheduled for a make-up by no later than the next class period following the regularly scheduled exam. In the case of Exam IV, students must be scheduled for the make-up by the last class day of the semester. Students are permitted to reschedule Exam IV only if they have a total of three exams on that day and not for any other reason (e.g., travel plans, needing more time to study). Any student not having a valid excuse for missing a make-up exam will not be allowed to take a different exam and may be advised to drop the course.

(2) Course Activities
In order to receive direct exposure to and learn more about the discipline of psychology, you will be participating in and/or completing a variety of activities throughout the semester. The activities all have different purposes, due dates, and point values. Please see the folder called Course Activities on the W drive for specifics.
A total of 250 points are possible in the course. They are distributed as follows:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Course Activities</th>

- 60% - 62.9% (minimum = 150 points) D-
- below 60% F

Statement on Academic Integrity

I consider any academic misconduct in this course as a serious offense. If I suspect that a student has given or received help on an exam, attempted to leave the classroom with a copy of an exam, or plagiarized someone’s writing, I will pursue the strongest possible academic penalties for such behavior. The disciplinary procedures and penalties for academic misconduct are described in the UW-Eau Claire Student Services and Standards Handbook (http://www.uwec.edu/sdd/publications.htm) in the section titled, “Chapter UWS 14—Student Academic Disciplinary Procedures.”

Suggestions for Success in Psychology 100

- Attend every meeting of our class.
- Be an active reader of the textbook. Check out the suggestions on pages 19-22 and 319-320 of our textbook. Also, former students have agreed that reading (or at least skimming) before class will help familiarize you with the main points to be covered that day so you can ask questions about difficult material. Reading just after attending class is also OK. Trying to cram it all in the night before an exam and/or not reading the textbook are not good ideas.
- Access the materials on the W drive immediately.
- Complete all review sheets and sample exam questions. Although chapter reviews are structured differently than exams, they’re helpful because they give you practice with topics that will appear on exams. The sample questions show you what to expect on exams.
- Study for our exams “as if” they’re going to be essay. Most of our exam questions will involve applying what you know to examples, meaning that you’ll need to know the material at a level that is deeper than typical multiple-choice questions based on rote memorization.
