

Hello Educators!

I hope you had a spectacular start to the semester! The Canvas Pioneers have been busy, and we are off to a great start. Students seem to like the new system too; 244 of them self-enrolled in a Canvas for Students course. The following shows some analytics about the credit courses running live this semester:

The Spring 2019 semester is the LAST time you can use D2L with students. All educators are encouraged to start getting ready for Canvas, and we have the following options to help you.

Get D2L Courses Exported to Canvas

We hired four Transition Technicians, and they are ready to help you with your Winterim and Spring courses!

If you have a D2L course(s) you would like exported in its current state, please complete the Course Export Form. If you are still making changes to your course(s), submit the form later. Submit one form per course to be exported. After exporting a course, Transition Technicians will send you an email offering to help clean up your course.

We have funding for Transition Technicians only through this academic year, so take advantage of this time-saving service now!

Attend Fall 2018 Canvas Sessions

We scheduled sessions through October and will add more sessions for November, December, and January later this fall. Please attend if you have time. View the Canvas Sessions Fall 2018 document on the For Educators page of the Canvas website for dates, times, and session descriptions. Please complete the Registration Survey if you plan to attend any sessions.

We will also offer sessions throughout the spring and summer.

As always, please let me know if you have any questions and have a wonderful week!
