Opportunity for underrepresented minority undergraduate students!

Carle Illinois College of Medicine REACH program is offering a special online learning experience for the summer of 2020. Designed to prepare underrepresented minority undergraduate students for a future in medicine, this online program will offer weekly webinars to further students along in their journey to medical school. The program will feature topics such as research, wellness, networking, and medical school admissions prep. The schedule will be announced and registration will be available soon. Visit the Carle Illinois REACH page to learn more.
