Title IX Policy
In compliance with Title IX, the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire does not discriminate on the basis of sex in employment or in educational programs or activities. It is our goal to maintain an environment free from harassment and discrimination. We proactively address sexual harassment, sexual assault, dating violence, domestic violence, and stalking and have established a system for the prompt and equitable resolution of complaints and grievances arising under Title IX.

Submit a Title IX incident report: uwec.ly/titleIX

Bias
Knowing how, where and when to respond to an incident or act of hate or violence is crucial, as is having the proper protocol in place to address the issue. UW-Eau Claire, we have a system in place and we need the help of everyone on campus to promptly and effectively identify and handle any incident that poses a threat to our community, our students or staff. Any action of a discriminatory nature, verbal, physical or otherwise, that is targeted at a person’s race, ethnicity, religion, disability, sexual orientation or ancestry is considered a bias/hate incident.

Submit a bias/hate incident report: uwec.ly/BIRT

Academic Misconduct
To help students achieve their full potential and protect the integrity of the whole student body, the behavior of UW-Eau Claire students is governed by UW System codes. A complete copy of the Student Academic Misconduct Disciplinary Procedures code may be found on the Dean of Students website.

rst of Concern Resources for UW-Eau Claire Faculty + Staff
There is no certain way to tell if someone is distressed. However, these indicators may often be seen among students in distress.

NOTICE
- Reports depressed mood or anxiety impacting academic progress.
- Disproportionate reactions to reasonable conversations or discussions.
- Lack of interest in activities.
- Sudden lack of attendance or coursework submissions.
- Reports they are struggling to manage their feelings about stress or loss.

REFER
- Refer the student to helpful resources based on the issues they disclose.
- If the student is reluctant to share information, feel free to mention some resources you feel might be helpful.
- Have resource information handy to give to students.
- It’s sometimes helpful for students to have someone walk them to Counseling Services or other offices if they’re nervous or reluctant.
- Submit student of concern report on the dean of students website.

FOLLOW UP
- Be sure to follow up with the student after your referral.
- Students appreciate knowing that faculty and staff are invested.
- Try to encourage, but refrain from “pushing” or “requiring” a student to use resources.
- Schedule a follow up with the student, but try not to contact them unless needed. Students are often dealing with quite a bit of stress.

Steps to help you respond with care and concern.

IDENTIFY
- Signs of distress (unkempt, uncharacteristic behaviors, negative or poor tone, disruptive in the classroom, sudden lack of attendance, etc.).
- Alcohol or drug use.
- Anxiety or depression.

UNDERSTAND
- It’s okay to ask students how they’re doing. Students often feel comforted when faculty and staff notice that something is wrong.
- Build a rapport with the student if you’re able and it’s appropriate.
- Be genuine and gently show your concern.
- Try not to make judgmental statements.
- Try not to “fix” their problem.

Helping Students in Distress

The Students of Concern Team is chaired by the Dean of Students office and comprised of faculty and staff across campus with a vested interest in student success and support. This team meets regularly to plan how best to provide support and guidance to students experiencing significant issues.

If you feel that a student would benefit from visiting with the Dean of Students office, use this link to submit a Student of Concern form to provide us with information so we can reach out and offer support.

Dean of Students

The Dean of Students Office and Students of Concern Team work to identify individuals who need assistance in order to avert crises and keep both the student and campus community safe and healthy.
