An exhibition that began with a presentation on the Science of Empathy by Mayo clinic professionals at UWEC evolved into an exercise in humanity for University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire students and their instructor, Jyl Kelley. A series of photographic prints “Imaging Empathy: Photo Tableaux,” were exhibited in the Haas Fine Arts Center the fall semester of 2021 to complete a successful collaboration with the Mayo Clinic. “I think the most important things that were learned came via the direct connections between people sharing their profoundly intimate and extraordinary stories about both questioning and understanding life and death.”
